light That gem the evening sky Its cheer_ing lus_tre gilds the gloom, When life's frail bands are riv'n, And shows be_ _yond the peace_ful tomb, The hope of joy in Heav'n, The hope _____ of joy in Heav'n.

But ne'er shall narrow bigot zeal,
Invite its splendour forth,
Nor slaves to vice and folly, feel
Its sweetness or its worth;
But ye, who all life's devious way,
Improve the mercy given,
For you, shall glow with brighter ray
The Star of hope in Heav'n.

Ye who but raise the suppliant eye
In our Redeemer's name,
To you his grace is ever nigh,
And you this hope may claim;
Then while on life's tempestuous sea
By adverse storms we're driv'n
May hope and faith, exulting see
The Star of bliss in Heav'n.
